

Teach your children about money

Young Adults: Almost there

Young adults should know the financial skills necessary for adulthood. Financial planning, budgeting, saving, investing, banking and credit are topics they should have a handle on.

Odd Jobs

Part-time jobs, odd jobs, or even a business helps foster responsible money and business management skills.

Support and guide

Turning 18 means that your teen is now legally an adult. Continue to support and guide them on their journey of managing their own finances.

Financial planning

Learning how to plan for tertiary education, pay rent, or buy a car, helps them to transition into the realities of adulthood.

More about credit

Your young adult is ready to learn how to responsibly use credit, the impact of interest rates and the types of payment plans.

Invest in the Future

Financial planning continues by learning complex concepts regarding saving and investing, short- and long-term insurance, medical cover and retirement planning.

Your child's journey to success starts with you.